

Farmers Market & Garden Update

Our Community Garden is growing well! We are waiting for delivery of Nyagous tomato sprouts and Indigo Rose tomatoes, both of which have a unique taste and offer high antioxidants. Our neighborhood deer are also eating well, but we are working on trying to build more protection for our plants.

The first Farmers Market started Saturday May 21. Feedback was positive from members of the community, and a big thank you to the church membership for shopping and supporting it. We need more produce and are working very hard to try and find ways to acquire more vendors. If you know of any, or if you want to sell some of your own produce, contact Janice Petroff or Barb Whitaker.

Follow the garden and the market on Facebook (Fairview Heights Community Garden); we will be providing an update every Thursday and Friday on what fresh produce will be available. Also, please "share" our page, as Brittany Estates and Fountains neighborhood pages have done.
